

Chad Eaves, MSC, MBA

Chad Eaves coaches leaders and advises organizations in the areas of communication and its integration into, leadership, and strategy. He writes on these topics including as a co-author on the article “The Perks of Informal Learning Networks” for TD, the magazine for the Association for Talent Development. Chad co-hosts the YouTube show “The Meaningful Communication Show”.

During his work on information technology projects, Chad took a deep interest into the quality and result of communication between stakeholders on projects for some of the world’s largest organizations leading their industries. Too often, focus is on technical answers, deadlines, and budgets resulting in gaps being revealed for how people are led and collaborate with each other. These gaps contribute to lost revenue, high project failure rates, and poor talent retention.

This phenomena of project performance conflicting with communication, leadership and spans across industries. Chad’s clients include executives and other talent with domestic and international organizations across industries.

Speaker for public & private events:

- Keynotes
- Breakout sessions
- Training sessions

Available as expert guest for:

- Media interviews
- Podcasts
- Panels (panelist & moderator)

For availability, topics, fees, and other information please email media@chadeaves.com or call (847.393.5643).